Care Transitions

Getting well at home

What is Care Transitions?

When you've been sick, being discharged from the hospital can leave you feeling a bit overwhelmed. You may have new medications, detailed medical instructions, need out-patient therapy, and have appointments with specialists. It's a lot to manage!

Sometimes, with all these difficulties, people quickly end up back in the hospital. That can take a toll on you and your family. But, often, a return visit to the hospital can be prevented. That's where Council on Aging's (COA) Care Transitions can help.

Care Transitions helps you transition from the hospital to another care setting, such as your home. It helps you understand and carry out your hospital discharge instructions. It helps you take better control of your health care.

How does Care Transitions work?

Care Transitions is a free service for eligible adults age 60 and older. It is designed to give you the tools you need to get home, stay healthy, and avoid preventable return visits to the hospital.

When you leave the hospital, your COA care manager will schedule a home visit and three follow-up phone calls at times that are convenient for you.

Over the course of four weeks, your care manager will work with you and your caregiver to help you:

- Better understand and manage your medications
- Make follow-up appointments with your primary care physician and specialists
- Respond to warning signs that could mean your condition is worsening
- Create a Personal Health Record that includes information you need to take to medical appointments
- Connect to community resources that help you maintain your health and independence

If your goal is to return home and stay home, you can get started today. Your Care Transitions care manager is:

Name: _____

Number: _____
